Ad Text Turning bureaucracy against themselves.

We have suffered a 40pc unemployment rate from layers of federal regulation applied only to tribal lands, but it hasn't stop Fort Berthold from becoming one of the state's most productive regions. Currently a coalition of Native Americans appointed by to guide country's Indian policy is researching proposals to make energy development easier on tribal lands - including the idea of transferring them to private ownership. This way, big corporations finally won't be allowed to rob and destroy our lands. We are strong not only by our unparalleled unity, but also by our ability to see the bigger picture.
